MEETING FIRST

By: W. C. Stump – Interim Secretary

Another first for the membership of the NSCA, Inc. will be a special free pass to all events held during the NSCA meeting weekend. That's right. FREE!! Admittance to all members attending the Pikeville Fall Meeting. Free attendance to the Friday evening cook out; free tables; and a free banquet. This is the brainchild of your President, Harold Snodgrass and Treasurer, Crawford Blakeman, Sr. It seems that the Association has a surplus of funds that will enable the membership attending this meeting to enjoy a "meeting on the house".

This is the Executive Committee's way of showing their appreciation to the members who travel hundreds of miles to attend our meetings. Also, it is the first time surplus funds have been made available for such a project. Our host for this meeting is Scriptor Walter Fletcher. Walt has hosted two previous meetings at the Landmark Inn, Pikeville, Ky., and his professionalism assures nothing but a first rate meeting.

As members in good standing, planning to attend the last event of the year 2000 need to do, is to fill out your application and confirmation form and mail it back. You will be given a name pass for all of the events, and all you will have to do is report to any or all of the events at the Pikeville Meeting. Your host and Executive Committee will take care of everything else.

Greeno was our first fatal mine explosion

by Buck Henson

It was not until 1907 that Wise County suffered its first fatal mine explosion.

This occurred at 8 am on March 16 at the Greeno mine which lay in the immediate vicinity of where the Lonesome Pine International Raceway is now.

It was operated by R.P. Bruce, a Wise attorney and a candidate for Congress in the previous fall elections.

The mien employed ten men underground of whom four survived, thanks largely to the experienced leadership of James Barrowman, the superintendent.

It has been surmised that a large percentage of underground explosions occur in the winter and spring months because the low barometric pressures permit gasses to migrate from the more distant workings of the mines. If a mine is not operated at night, opportunity is provided for gas to accumulate.

Old miners used to talk about holding their lamps up against the roof upon entering a mine in the mornings to deliberately burn off any accumulated gasses.

Early in December of 1910, Superintendent Barrowman decided that he would not go to Minnesota for Christmas. His wife would visit him in Wise County instead. On December 13, she boarded a train for Bluefield, WV, where he was to meet her. She made a connection with Norfolk and Western Train No. 4 at Williamson at 4:55 on the morning of December 15 and arrived at her destination at 9:40.

There, she "alighted buoyantly and looked around the depot platform expecting any minute to see her husband rushing toward her". When he did not appear, she went on the Altamount Hotel where she inquired for him at the desk. She was told that a Mr. Taylor from Coeburn had a message for her, but he had just stepped out.

The reason James Barrowman was not there was that there had been another explosion at the Greeno mine. The blast had occurred at 9:10 on the morning of December 14. Of the dozen miners, only four escaped death.

James Rosenburg, a company man, was badly burned, but managed to survive. John" Swede" Roden and G. E. Lehman had found a leak in a one-inch compressed air line which enabled them to survive the after-damp. John Ritcky, identified as a Salvishman, was found alive with his face in a small stream. Gussjo Ritchie, the 15-year old mule-driver was not so fortunate as he was overcome by after-damp.

His mule was found dead near a main door which it had vainly tried to kick down. James Barrowman was found face down with his back "burned to the bone".

The next day, Mrs. Barrowman made her sad journey to Wise County in heavy mourning with tears "glistening through the heavy black veil that shrouded her face".

Thanks to Roger Slusher for this article. James Barrowman was a brother of Charles Barrowman (his grandfather), who was a g.s. of Robert Flemming Coal Co., Banner, VA. Another brother (of Charles') was David Barrowman who operated Barrowman Coal Corp. in Elkhorn City, KY.

Jenkins Celebrates Opening Of David A.
Zegeer Coal Railroad Museum
Submitted by Mr. David A. Zegeer
(The David A. Zegeer Coal and Railroad Museum was dedicated May 9, 1998 in Jenkins, KY)

Hundreds of people joined Governor Paul Patton
Saturday in Jenkins to dedicate the David A.
Zegeer Coal and Railroad Museum.

The museum is the realization of a long sought after goal of the people of Jenkins who began working on the project years ago.

Fittingly, the museum is located in the old
Railroad Depot on Main Street.

It was named after David Zegeer, who served as Consolidated Coal and later Beth-Elkhorn Coal Corporations' general manager. He is credited with assisting the Jenkins Independent Schools in raising funds for facilities and educational programs. In addition, he was instrumental in using coal company resources together with city input to develop recreational facilities and other community projects which have been enjoyed by thousands of area residents.

In 1988 Zegeer and another former Jenkins resident, Marshall Prunty, premiered a documentary they produced entitle "Birth of a Coal Mining Town - Jenkins, Kentucky" which chronicled the development of the Eastern Kentucky town from the early 1900's.

Zegeer now lives in Lexington, Kentucky where he is the president of his own mine consulting firm.

---

*In the program of the opening to the Museum there was a poem written in honor of Dave Zegeer by Carlis "Abb" Williams, who was employed by the company which employed them both. It expresses the feeling of about everyone who knows Mr.
Zegeer both within the company and in the communities close by.*

In my home town black gold is found
A legend in it's time
A hundred years of sweat and tears
Down in a deep dark mine.

To all you folks in Jenkins town
A monument so dear
The legends live once more to give
"The House of Dave Zegeer".

A quaint museum of tools and men
Who carved this mining town
A world of pride for those who died
Beneath this sacred ground.

Inside you'll find a peace of mind
The dreams of mice and men
Coal miners stamp "A CARBIDE LAMP"
Goes back to days of when.

You'll find a drill of finest steel
The pick and shovel too
A dinner pail we all knew well
A carbide hat of blue.

You'll find the heroes on the wall
The statues by the door
The smoke stack engine runs each day
And time is evermore.

This may not be the hall of fame
Or Rome's majestic art
But purpose has it's own reward
When love comes from the heart.

Somewhere the stars are shining bright
In "Jenkins' Hall of Fame"
To Dave Zegeer, we love you dear
We're proud to share your name.

Carlos "Abb" Williams

What a great service Mr. Zegeer has done in helping to preserve coal and railroad history.
We are forever indebted to him. J. Singleton

CORKEY CALLING

By: Harold Snodgress – Interim President

The count down is now on for a great meeting to be held in Pikeville, KY. This will be the third time the NSCA, Inc. has chosen Pikeville, KY., for the location of its meetings. The old saying that “the third time is a charm” will be proven true as we expect a large turnout and our host, Walter Fletcher can’t be beat at organizing our meetings. The first meeting was great, the second meeting was GREATER, and this one will be even better, if that is possible. However, knowing Walt as I do, I know the unexpected will take place and he will continue to provide a special hometown atmosphere as usual.

This will be a special meeting, as the Association will show it’s appreciation for the continued loyalty of the members who travels hundreds of miles to attend out shows. Our planned “On the House” show of appreciation is long over due and I could think of no better way to show my appreciation than by treating you to a fee free show. So come on down, trade scrip, tell tall tales, and make yourself at home at the Landmark Inn, Pikeville, KY.
